

Email sent to Tennis BC on April 16th:

I am wondering if there has been any change on leagues, and socials with Dr. Henry clearly stating for members to stick with their small bubble both indoors and outdoors?

Are leagues and socials ok to now operate in our club or what is the stance that is being taken or discussed in response to the latest guidelines at Tennis BC?

Response from Tennis BC on April 16th:

There has been no change to tennis for awhile. We are still following return to sport 2.0 as published by viaSport. Outdoor rules and indoor rules are different with outdoor allowing doubles and group lessons. Kids have different rules as well.

There is no league play going on in tennis that we know of. Both the mens and women's league were cancelled. If your club is running an internal league itself you can do that as long as players are at their home club only and proper distances and protocols are followed. You only have outside play so doubles is allowed. I am unsure of what socials you run but those are technically not allowed.
